Overview

The Providence Chapter of APICS offers professional development meetings, educational workshops and seminars, certification programs, a job bank, and news web news updates. Providence has been an education resource in Rhode Island for over 50 years. Individuals participating in Chapter activities find ample opportunities to enhance their skills and network with other people involved with production and inventory control, materials and resource management, and supply chain management.

Our members come primarily from manufacturing, distribution, and supply chain backgrounds from manufacturing and service companies located in Rhode Island, Southeastern Massachusetts, and Eastern Connecticut. You do not have to be a member to participate in Chapter activities, although membership brings additional benefits. To learn more about the Providence Chapter and the advantages of APICS membership, please explore our website. <http://www.apicsprov.org>
